

“Super Fany,” initiative for supporting the vocational education and training

AAST EC supported initiatives as “Super Fany,” that aims at supporting vocational schools students on the principle of entrepreneurship.

Vocational and Technical Education and Training Week in Port Said Governorate from 14 to 17 July 2019, which is a week dedicated to all types of training, vocational education and entrepreneurship activities, and aims to collect various activities that are conducted in the technical and vocational education and training sector at different levels and shed light on them to improve the image and social perception about Technical and Vocational Education and Training Sector by raising awareness of the importance of entrepreneurship and rehabilitating schools supported by the Technical and Vocational Education and Training Program in Egypt.

The Entrepreneurship Center participated in the implementation of the Egypt Support and Development Program (TVET) by training more than (100 students) at the Academy’s headquarters - Port Said by holding a variety of activities and training workshops for development and entrepreneurship for students and graduates of vocational education and training in order to better prepare graduates in the labor market.

This is the project link on social media

<https://www.facebook.com/superfny/>

